

Williams Fails; McLoughlin Keeps Tennis Crown---Cock o' the Walk Wins Handicap

M'LOUGHLIN RETAINS HIS NATIONAL TITLE

Beats Williams in Final for American Lawn Tennis Supremacy.

EXCELS IN VERSATILITY

After Loss of Second Set He Directs His Attack to Deep Court.

NEWPORT, Aug. 26.—Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco retained his title to the national lawn tennis championship today by defeating R. Norris Williams 2d of Philadelphia in the final round of the all comers tournament on the main court at the Casino three sets out of four. The scores were 6-4, 3-6, 6-3. This is the second time the California Comet has won the crown, and he therefore has won two less on the seventh challenge cup. Incidentally McLoughlin is the first to gain his honors by playing through all of the national titles are now on the Pacific coast. Williams' description of the interscholastic championship, which is held by C. Colket Cane of Philadelphia.

Long before the men entered the arena for the start of a tussle which was to decide the thirty-third championship of this country a huge gallery had assembled. When McLoughlin and Williams came out on the court they were greeted with a great ovation. Practically all of the regular seats were filled, while the temporary stands were filled to overflowing. The two players, both with rackets and even the nearby trees furnished points of vantage to men who were anxious to get a good look at the battle. Because of the great demand for seats the growing popularity of the tourney Robert D. Wrenn, president of the National Lawn Tennis Association, stated that steps would be taken to have the seating capacity doubled for the 1914 tourney.

There was little betting, in fact much less than is usual at an event of this kind, but in the little that was done McLoughlin was a prime favorite and odds of 2 to 1 and 3 to 1 were quoted. The smaller odds ruled that the Philadelphia would be unable to take even a set from the champion, for he was known to be a master tactician whose every stroke has been brought to a high state of development. Few felt that he would prove anything like a match for the meteoric speed of Williams' agility and wonderful resourcefulness of the California Comet.

As a matter of fact Williams was the most worthy opponent that McLoughlin met in the seven matches he played during the tourney. Not since the Westerner was defeated by Park in England has the champion been forced to extend himself as much as in his struggle with Williams in the second set, especially the Philadelphia worried McLoughlin. Time and time again he passed the champion and placed marvellously at only the great weakness of Williams that allowed McLoughlin to win, for the Philadelphia surpassed the California during the match on placements and equalled him on service aces. Both men worked bravely at the net and Williams seldom was bothered by McLoughlin's terrific service.

The Westerner's all around play, however, was far superior to that of the challenger. He made wonderful recoveries and his form showed a marked improvement over last year, and even over his play in the Davis cup matches earlier in the summer.

McLoughlin opened the first set with service and after duce had been reached took the opening game on a beautiful place followed by a service ace. Williams came right back and won the next, materially aided by two bulletlike drives which skimmed along the side lines. The champion gained the third at long last, but the Philadelphia was unable to outdone the champion and McLoughlin out in the fourth and sixth.

The Westerner barged the fifth, but had to work hard for it, the gallery was shocked when Williams broke through his rival's service and made off with the seventh game. The Philadelphia had been getting plenty of steam from his drives and considering, for his return was soft.

With the game score at 4-3 in his favor Williams became as wary as a fox and victory lay with the eighth game to McLoughlin, for he generously contributed two double faults in a row. This evened the score at 4 all, and while the champion commenced to play a smash game Williams did his best to smash the sphere on returns with all his power, but he was unable to do so. The set with them.

Points and strokes analysis of the opening set:

McLoughlin	Williams
5 1 4 0 2 3 4 4 2-5	2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2-8
Aces: Pts. Out: Net: Fts.
McLoughlin..... 2 5 6 6 5 2	Williams..... 2 5 6 6 5 2

Williams' novel experience for McLoughlin to be beaten on both service and placement aces, but this is accounted for by the fact that Williams was handicapped by the cannon ball serves with ease, while he had a tendency to overhit the softer ones and the champion was unwilling to waste any of his service aces. The Philadelphia covered the ground thoroughly and seemed to have a knack of returning the ball in a way that was erratic and made almost as many outs in the first three games as he made in the whole first set. Williams, however, was slow to take advantage of many golden opportunities and so the champion moved into the lead at two games to one.

The Philadelphia steeled at this point, while McLoughlin was lacking in much of his usual brilliancy. Williams came up to the net and made some first class kills and pretty cross-court drives, which helped him to make a push to the lead by annexing three games. McLoughlin picked up in the seventh game and although Williams was playing better tennis the champion came back strong and won the game after it had gone to deuce five times.

The champion followed this with two more victories in deuce games, gained by most brilliant play that he had shown thus far in the match. McLoughlin was now in the front, with the games at 5-4, but his advantage was only momentary, for Williams came back strong and fairly played the California off his feet.

The Philadelphia tore off some smashing drives to the corners and gathered in three games while McLoughlin was making only two points. This was enough to give Williams the set at 7-5. It was the first and proved to be the only set lost by the California during the tournament.

Points and strokes analysis of the second set:

McLoughlin	Williams
5 1 5 2 3 2 2 4 0 1-4-5	Williams..... 5 1 5 2 3 2 2 4 0 1-4-5

Germany Schulz to Develop Line Men

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 26.—A Germany Schulz, the old Michigan star and the man selected by Walter Camp as the greatest center that ever played the game. Has been employed by the Michigan Athletic Association as assistant coach of the football team this season. Time was when Coach Yost developed his teams aided only by former Michigan men who found time to come to Ann Arbor for a day or two before the big game, but of late years it has been the custom to employ an assistant coach, and sometimes two. This year Schulz will try his hand at developing the line men.

McLoughlin..... 4 4 5 5 2 4 4 4 4-3-6
Williams..... 2 2 3 3 4 4 4 4 2-3-5
Aces: Pts. Out: Net: Fts.
McLoughlin..... 4 4 5 5 2 4 4 4-3-6
Williams..... 2 2 3 3 4 4 4 4 2-3-5

Williams opened the fourth set wider than ever and made so many errors that McLoughlin took the first three games with a great burst of speed. The Philadelphia settled down a little and outplayed McLoughlin on the latter's service in the fourth game. The California finished the match with another cluster of three, for he was better than Williams at the net and had lost much of their strength and failed time and again on attempted placements.

Points and strokes analysis of the third set:

McLoughlin	Williams
4 4 5 5 2 4 4 4-3-6	Williams..... 2 2 3 3 4 4 4 4 2-3-5

COLLINS PRECIPITATES ROW.

Starts After Referee When Disqualified—Crowd Takes a Hand.

A free for all battle that had every element of a riot, in a serious affair was prevented by the quick action of the referee and several employees of the Atlantic Garden A. C. last night. The second of the three scheduled ten round bouts between Jack (Twin) Collins and Young Marino.

Collins, who had been fouling Marino in the first round after being cautioned by the referee, continued his unfair tactics in the second session. After a rough fight, which Marino was disabled by four punches to the head, he was disqualified and the referee stepped in to slug both his opponent and the referee.

The final bout between Bull Anderson and Tommy Bergen ended with Anderson winning a shade in his favor, the bout going the limit. It was a rough slug scrap from the start, Bergen wrenching Anderson's left arm in the seventh round. In the eighth and tenth rounds Bergen was having his hands full quieting the disturbance in the ring.

Manager Fordon rushed Collins to the locker room, where he was hurriedly dressed and sent away by a side exit.

GLASS LEES MOUNT OUT AT RIGHT TIME

Holds Cock o' the Walk Behind Until Stretch, Then Speeds On to Easy Victory.

WEIGHT DOESN'T VEX HIM

Carries 123 Pounds Over Mile Route in Next to Fastest Huron Ever Run.

SARATOGA, Aug. 26.—Frederick Johnson's Cock o' the Walk again demonstrated his worth as a handicap horse when he won the Huron Handicap for three-year-olds inside of two minutes. He was the only horse to be conceded weight to the four other starters. In the original allotments August Belmont's Rock View was asked to give Glass 15 pounds, but the walk over the route of one mile and three-sixteenths, but the Belmont champion was not among those named to compete, and this left the position of honor with 123 pounds up.

Cock o' the Walk's victories in the Saratoga Handicap and Champion Handicap inside of two minutes, which he has faced the starter here, were sufficient to install him favorite in the small field at odds of 11 to 10, but all the others were liberally supported. Huron, the strength of his gallant finish in his last race, being the second choice at 3 to 1. Bargeat, Nightstick and Prince Eugene made up the field, the last named being the outsider at 7 to 1.

There was a general rush for positions when the flag fell and before the first turn was reached Nightstick, from the inside, obtained a head on Glass, but with Bargeat next, and then Prince Eugene, making another effort to run his race in the first division instead of waiting for the under horse, but he was placed nicely by Glass just behind the leaders as they travelled at a good pace down the backstretch and he gradually closed the gap though running under the influence of the crowd.

At the end of the backstretch Cock o' the Walk gave Prince Eugene a go by, but showed no immediate haste to join issue with Nightstick and Bargeat, who were racing desperately for the lead two lengths in front of him. As soon as they were straightened out, in the stretch Glass called on his mount and the scarlet and orange Mr. Johnson's horse was placed nicely by Glass just behind the leaders as they travelled at a good pace down the backstretch and he gradually closed the gap though running under the influence of the crowd.

Outside of the handicap there was little to choose in the races, but stirring finishes marked two of them and in both the Western turfmen E. R. Bradley had the luck to supply the winner. In the two-year-old event, the hand-picked Royal Meteor, owned by Ben to take the big end of the purse.

In the other races won by Bradley Brookfield, ridden by McDonald, was in front all the way, but when it came to the run on Little Jupiter, the favorite, it looked as though Brookfield was beaten. Little Jupiter headed Brookfield and might have won had he not been content to hold his side him. As it was he rolled about on the horse's neck and lost enough ground to allow Brookfield to poke his nose in front at the finish.

Little Johnny, ridden by Butler, was a comparatively poor day, but he showed skill in the second race, at a mile, when he brought Col. Cook home in front after a contention with the favorite, the hand-picked Royal Meteor, owned by Ben to take the big end of the purse.

Impression, while Royal Meteor was in the stretch he ran over the leaders and won the race. In the fifth and fifth races Miss Brush graduated from the maiden class in the first, while in the fifth Capt. E. B. Casati's "Humiliation" proved the best of thirteen maiden two-year-olds.

CURLEY BROWN OUT AT LAUREL

James Butler Buys Control and Matt Winn Will Be Manager.

SARATOGA, Aug. 26.—H. D. (Curley) Brown has at last been eliminated from the control of the Laurel racetrack. Matt Winn announced today that a controlling interest in the Maryland State Fair Association which conducts the racing at Laurel had been bought by James Butler and his friends. This insured racing at the track in the month of October under the Jockey Club rules, which was in doubt while Brown was the dominant factor in the association. The official announcement was to the effect that the controlling interest had been purchased from H. D. Brown, G. F. Walbaum and J. L. Hollan.

Under the new arrangement Matt Winn will be manager in the interest of Butler and the others concerned in the purchase of the track. The 50 percent of the stock procured from Brown and his friends has been taken up by Maryland people interested in the sport.

Curley Brown, who was secretary under the old regime, will retain that position under the new management.

The stake books have been issued and the old list is adhered to, but the controlling interest in the Jockey Club objected to be changed. It is the intention of Butler and his friends to conduct the racing on a higher scale than former owners, and the building of a handsome clubhouse is contemplated for next season.

SAM PUTS PORKY OUT IN FOUR SHORT ROUNDS

Flynn Vexes Langford in First, but Is Outclassed Thereafter.

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—Sam Langford in his first fight in this country in several seasons waded through Porky Flynn of Boston in four rounds to tonight. The fat baby, fat as a hog, won as he pleased and only once was he bothered at all. That was in the first round, when Porky caught him on the jaw with a short right swing and dropped him.

A big crowd saw the bout. Langford was a topheavy favorite, though there was considerable betting that Flynn would win in four rounds with him. Sambo brought with him from the antipodes a green kimono with yellow markings that was fetching and if worn on a person of higher build would be essentially a handsome gown. However, that didn't deter Langford.

He felt Flynn out for a second or two at the start and then shot lefts and rights. The fight was about two minutes along when suddenly Porky shot the close in right and Sambo staggered, then dropped. He heard Jack Shoshan, toiled off and then proceeded to fight again. He merely stalled till the bell and had Flynn owned the punch he could have finished him.

In the second Sam dropped Porky with a faulter right and left to the head. He pulled through the round, for had he cared to land hard there were several openings big enough to drive a team through. But he was merely a boxing exhibition, but just before the bell rang for the end of the fourth Sam shot a right to Porky's head, followed it with a left and then a quick right and the fight ended just before the bell was to be changed.
